

Synopsis of ADTSEA Virtual Winter Workshops

Unique and Engaging Learning Activities (January 25)

Presenters:

JoEllen Suter
Carol Hardin

With the generation changing more than ever we need creative and unique activities that will engage the learner. This workshop will not only give you many examples of unique and engaging activities, but it will go over how to develop your own unique and engaging activities. With this workshop, and your application, your class will become more engaging for your students.

A Blueprint for Virtual Learning (January 27)

Presenters:

Frank Menzel
Benny Malburg

Since Covid hit us almost 2 years ago our society has shifted to the virtual world. Almost all schools and states are allowing virtual learning to limit the person-to-person contact. This workshop will show a blueprint for virtual learning. How do we set up class on the administrative side? As teachers how do we deal with technological issues from the student or from us? How can we make driver education more engaging and get the students get involved in class? This workshop will cover these questions and more as we learn how to teach in this virtual world.

Tire Safety: There's More than Meets the Road (February 22)

Presenters:

JoEllen Suter
Carol Hardin

Proper tread depth and proper inflation, that is all there is when it comes tires, correct? That is not correct. There is a lot more going on with tires. In this workshop you will learn how much goes into tires and tire safety. With this workshop you take something back to your driver education class and enhance your presentation about tire tread and inflation.

Strategies for Training Drivers with Disabilities (February 24)

Presenters:

Kate Lopez
Timothy Brant

We have all had students with disabilities and many of us have struggled to teach them properly. This workshop will give us tips and strategies for us when we have a student with disabilities. With the application of this workshop we can get over our fear of teaching students with disabilities and give them the coaching and correcting they need and deserve.
